Abstract

The Entomological Society of America was formed in 1889. In 1953, the Entomological Society of America joined with The American Association of Economic Entomologists, which had previously taken in the North Central States Entomologists. The objectives of the society are to disseminate original research and perspectives relating to entomology. This collection contains administrative records from the ESA including reports, minutes, correspondence, financial records, minutes and reports from the Executive and Governing Board, and publications and newsletters dealing with entomology, pesticides, and insecticide research.

Historical note

The Entomological Society of America (ESA) was formed in 1889 and joined with The American Association of Economic Entomologists in 1953. The main goal of the ESA is to disseminate research and perspectives in entomology to meet the needs of scientists and researchers. The ESA has more than 6,400 members consisting of researchers, teachers, government officials, healthcare personnel, students, consultants, and casual entomologists. The Society publishes several journals annually to reach different demographics and meets annually to exchange new research in the form of papers, posters, symposia, and other methods.

The Entomological Society of America (ESA) is centered in Lanham, Maryland, a suburb of Washington, D. C.

Collection description

This collection (1889-1995, undated) contains reports, publications, budgets, committee correspondence, travel grant applications, handbooks and manuals, information regarding national meetings and international congresses, financial records, biographical information on select members, and correspondence. The collection is divided into three series: Administrative Records; Executive and Governing Board; and Entomology, Pesticide, and Insecticide Publications.

The Administrative Records forms the bulk of the collection and consists of reports, publications, budgets, committee correspondence, travel grant applications, handbooks and manuals, information regarding national meetings and international congresses, cash books, and biographical information on deceased members. The series contains information on the following groups, projects, and publications: the American Registry of Professional Entomologists, the insect fauna of North America project, and American Economic Entomology. The Executive and Governing Board series contains information regarding the Executive Committee and Governing Board of the Entomological Society of America, including meeting minutes, agendas, planning, reports, and correspondence. The Entomology, pesticide, and insecticide publications contain newsletters and annual reports from a variety of sources. The bulk of these newsletters come from entomology departments and clubs at different universities; but there are also some from the American Registry of Professional Entomologists, The Insecticide Society of Washington, and the National Pest Control Association. The series also contains insecticide, laboratory equipment, and machinery promotional brochures and articles.

Organization

The collections is organized into three series:

Series 1, Administrative Records, 1889-1989, undated \(chronological\)

Series 2, Executive and Governing Board, 1937-1987 \(chronological\)

Series 3, Entomology, pesticide and insecticide publications \(non-ESA\), 1913-1995, undated \(alphabetical\)
